"One of the most aristocratic faces seen in Washington is that of Mrs. Semple faughter of President Tyler. She has passed her 80th year and yet retains an exceedingly youthful complexion. Personally she is charming, and impresses one as stopping out of the European courts," so says the National Magazine, under the heading "Social Sidelights at the Capital."

The following is a letter from this interesting Indy, written from the Louise Home, Washington D. C., to the Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, Ohio, concerning their great catarrh tonic, Peruna. It is not difficult to discover that the French and Spanish Basques are one and the same people, having the same habits and speaking the same language. In the French province this language is spoken from the shores of the Bay of Biscay almost as far as Oleron to the east. In the Spanish Basque provinces the same peculiar dialect is heard as soon as we leave Biarritz, and when we have passed the custom house at Irun we are in the heart of the Basque district. Some of the most picturesque localities are Hendave, Fontarabia, San Sebastian and Harnani, which are all in Guipuzcon, the purest of the Basque provinces. At Pampeluna and at Vittoria, as well as at Bilboa, the language is constantly heard also, though at the latter place it is not now so frequently used, as large numbers of foreign workmen have been imported there of late years. The whole of this lovely and varied landscape, wild though cultivated, gay and very suppy, yet temperate as compared with the rest of Spain, has been governed since 1876 like other parts of the peninsula, though it had previously a special Other branch lines extend from Bay-onne to St. Jean Pled de Port from gion of the Pyrenees, in very remote times, supplied the passage through was also through this district that the discover.

A Plece of Lath.

A story is told of a former mayor of Birmingham, England, that he gave orders to have his robes of office lined with "vermin," When the late Alderman Sturge was mayor he received a royal command to dine and sleep at Windsor. This of course meant court dress and sword. The court dress was reluctantly submitted to, but as a member of the Society of Friends, and, moreover, one who had greatly distinguished himself in the cause of peace, for he had formed one of the peace deputation to the czar before the outbreak of the Crimean war, Mr. Sturge would not consent to wear a lethal weapon. A compromise was happily effected. A scabbard and hilt of the usual kind were at his worship's side when the presentation to royalty took place, but the sword was a mere lath of wood. Fortunately the worthy Quaker was not called upon to draw in defense of his sovereign.

How Mothers may Help their Daughters into Womanhood

Every mother possesses information of vital value to her young daughter. That daughter is a precious legacy, and the responsibility for her future is largely in the hands of the mother. The mysterious change that develops the thoughtless girl into the thoughtful woman should find the mother on the watch day and night. As she cares for the physical well-being of her daughter, so will the woman be, and her children also.

When the young girl's thoughts become sluggish, when she experiences headaches, dizziness, faintness, and exhibits an abnormal disposition to sleep, pains in the back and lower limbs, eyes dim, desire for solitude, and a dislike for the society of other girls, when she is a mystery to herself and friends, then the mother should go to her aid promptly. such a time the greatest aid to nature is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It prepares the young system for the coming change, and is the surest reliance in this hour of trial.

The following letters from Miss Good are practical proof of Mrs. Pinkham's efficient advice to young women.
